

Ebony Rashidah

Ebony Rashidah is a Spoken Word Artist, poet, playwright, and child literacy advocate. As a teen, she was mentored by Delaware's Poets Laureate, the Twin Poets, and studied poetry under former Poet Laureate E. Jean Lanyon.

In 2009, she was the winner of In Rhyme, sponsored by The Grand Opera House. She is a three-time finalist in the Best Performing Artist category for the Delaware Black Awards, and, in 2010, she earned First Runner-Up and won the talent segment in the Miss Black America Philadelphia Pageant.

Ebony is a self-published author who also earned a bachelor's degree in human services from Springfield College where she earned an award for Excellence in Literature in 2014. She also holds a master's degree in management from Wilmington University.